Endless Treasure Hunt Features Key:

Classic action gameplay using a portal gun.

Play 100 puzzle levels to uncover 20 unique puzzles, find 120 unique colors and defeat enemies.

Play 100 Puzzle Levels to Uncover 20 Unique Puzzles

Your quest begins when you arrive in room 26. Jump into your portal gun to travel to interesting rooms. Each room contains more and more puzzles that will require you to strategize as well as work your portal gun magic to complete this game. Before you know it, you will be told you have reached the end of the game with no end in sight!

Why 100 puzzles? This amount will take you ages but not as long as 100! Puzzle styles change frequently, and the game can be kept fresh for weeks by playing with the unlock systems. And there's still more to come.

Once the 100 puzzle level is complete, you will unlock the first door in the treasure mine. Your next hurdle... an End of Level screen that may taste familiar if you have played Endless Ocean or Endless Ocean 2.

Every time you unlock a door, you will get one step closer to an end of level screen. This means that you will get three chances to advance to the next level: at the level start, after the one puzzle is solved and the first room is reached, and at the end of each room level if you continue in that room.

Each room also has additional puzzle elements that you can clear to give you more available color drops. Collecting colors will unlock additional areas in the game and clues to understanding the backstory.

For this game there are two main primary puzzle styles to play through: grids and compound objects. Many of the puzzles are compound problems. Compound problems are problems that must be solved with multiple items such as matching colors, matching animals, and solving word puzzles. Each puzzle has a number of steps that will require the use of different items and locations. An example of this is a room that has a child room with a portal gun on each side and a sky on the ceiling. As you explore through this room, there are portals and ways to travel to other rooms. One path will require you to shoot color drops from the other portals. Another path that only requires you to push a switch on

About The Game Endless Treasure Hunt: 59 comments: Great game! I really love the concept. However, one thing I noticed right off the bat is that the text in your review is pretty small. I might not have noticed this if I didn't hear you mention it. This might be a native iOS thing, but still. Anyway, keep up the great work. Can't wait to see how it turns out. Wow, thank you so much for the kind words. I have had a lot of people ask me if it is possible to change the language of the game. In my humble opinion I think the reason it is so small is the game is set at 320dp. I also installed the iOS 7 emulator and tested it there. The game was originally set at 480dp. So it's quite small, but this was because I have set the iPad 2 resolution to 480x320. I just changed it to 320x320 and the text is about the same size. Now that I have posted the new Apk I will try to make the game size larger. Hey, I just installed your new Apk. I can't get any screen shots because it crashes my first time to play. If I have a chance I will try again. I've looked at the previous version and noticed it was very small so I'm a little bit worried. Is it too small or is that just the emulator? What's new in Endless Treasure Hunt:

Scene The scene in this post is from the episode Endless Experiment in which Miles and his friends finally find the Sphere of Life and discover all its secrets. It is one of my favorite scenes, so I decided to dedicate a separate page to it. The Great Escape Scene This chapter of the story is from a young reader I work with; he once wrote in as saying that Endless Experiment was his first big Harry Potter read. His story inspired me to create this page, which serves as a testament to the age of this post and my life in general. I am so grateful that these words are being read by someone, because without them, this great story will go unseen. Again, the story is copyrighted by the publisher. Thank you again for your big heart, James. —The One Riddleley was silent for a long time. Then he said: "See those symbols?" "What about them, Dad?" said Silence. "From what I remember," said Riddleley, "those are parts of a year ago." Silence made an infuriating gesture, like a grown up. "I remember!" Riddleley sat up straighter. "They were on the stone. I was going to give my best friend a map that revealed the secret of immortality.” “And what happened to the stone?” “It just stayed on the ground for ever. Sometimes I was struck with how strange that felt.” “Ha!” snapped Silence. “You realize it was a stone!” She looked at him with care. “So you’re saying that those parts of the year ago, the ones on the stone, are inside you now.” “Hmm,” said Riddleley. He smiled at the ceiling. “If that’s true, I guess I’m never older.” “But that’s absurd,” said Silence. “You are old.” “Yes, it is.” Silence rolled her eyes. “See why it’s absurd?” whispered Riddleley. “We both know it’s impossible. But if it wasn’t, then this
