Libros Thermomix Pdf Exvagos 26Q: How to stop unwanted clicks I have a link that uses ng-click in conjunction with the "controllerAs" syntax to assign it the name of the object that is being clicked on, so I can do something like this: {{myObject.name}} The problem is that the user can accidentally click on this link and it will assign the variable, myObject.name to whatever their last click was on. How do I prevent this? A: I would suggest using ng-bind-html instead of manually parsing and escaping the link. Do note that using the ng-bind-html-unsafe you lose the possibility to use other Angular directives such as ng-model. A: Add the ng-click-disabled="myObject.myField" directive on the element. This example code will disable an element if the value of myField
